Dreaming of a UK getaway? The number one hotel in the country has been announced

Dreaming of a UK getaway? The number one hotel in the country has been announced. If you've got that Friday feeling, and seriously want some fun plans to look forward to, we might just have THE perfect remedy.

TripAdvisor has released its Travellers' Choice lists for 2016. (OK, so the perfect remedy would be a free holiday, but hey, what can you do?)

Morning all, have a great day. It's nearly the weekend! pic.twitter.com/IQpTHsWkDa

So the number one hotel in the world is some sort of incredible palace in Jodhpur, India.

But when it comes to the best 25 hotels in the UK, the top spot, according to travellers themselves, goes to the Belmond Le Manoir aux Quat'Saisons in Great Milton – and it's still prettttty impressive.

Here's what it looks like inside.

Here's another one of the rooms, because why not?

It might sound kinda French but Great Milton is definitely in the UK – about seven miles outside the city of Oxford.

As stunning as it looks, why exactly have people decided this is the top place to stay?

One TripAdvisor user says: "Of course the rooms, service and meals are outstanding. But it is more than that. It is the genuine and respectful friendliness shown by all the staff."

Oh, and top chef Raymond Blanc being the owner might have something to do with it...

Congratulations to @raymond_blanc and the team at @lemanoir on being the best

There are massive gardens in the grounds, including Raymond's own little herb garden.

You can have spa treatments IN YOUR ROOM. And this right here is the sort of bathroom you might have. Wowzers (yeah, we're thinking it's probs a tad pricey).

No biggie, but it is also in TripAdvisor's "best hotels in the world" list.

Very proud that @lemanoir has achieved 6th place for best hotel in the world & 1st for best hotel in the UK on trip advisor! #pushyaself
